

Who Should Attend

All construction personnel at any job site. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) recommends that construction companies have at least one person at each job site that is trained and available for first aid.

This course is tailored specifically for the construction industry, and is certified by the American Heart Association.

Check your First Aid/CPR card! Has it expired? Most are good for 2 years.

This training can save lives – making it invaluable to you, your company and your co-workers. Learn the construction-specific first aid, life-saving, and injury-assessment techniques that are essential for all construction personnel.

- Props and equipment, such as CPR masks and portable defibrillators, make the workshop hands-on and interactive.
- Group practice and role play enhance emergency response instruction.
- Participants will receive a wallet certificate for both CPR and First Aid Training, valid for 2 years.
